In March of 2015, the Quileute Tribe finalized their purchase of the 110 Industrial Park from Bill and Kitty Sperry, renaming it the Kit.la Center.

“In the Quileute language, ‘Kit.la,’ pronounced kate-lah, means ‘upstream’ and is an abbreviation for a longer word that translates to ‘upstream prairie place,’ the tribe's traditional name for the [old sawmill] location.”

Currently, the Kit.la Center does not have a website of any kind.

We'll update this file as soon as we learn of one.

Old Mill Trading Post

After purchasing the 110 Industrial Park, the Quileute Tribe closed the Old Mill Trading Post, and all of the contents were auctioned off. It is unknown if the tribe plans to open some kind of gift store there in future—or not.

Décor d' Forks

Décor d' Forks closed long before the Quileute purchased the 110 Industrial Park.

If local artists have been booked at the Round House and notify the Forks COC, the event will be listed.

*The weekly Quileute Drum Group and other tribal ceremonies may be held at the Round House from now on.
